ENERGY CONSERVATION FEEDBACK

--Lisa Underwood-- "To go a step beyond Lolly Gilbert's suggestion (3-16-77) to turn off radiators before opening windows, why not try opening windows on warm days, instead of turning on the air conditioner immediately? A.C. is marvelous in 90° weather, but do you really need it when it is a pleasant 70° or so outside? Enjoy the feeling of fresh air, even if it's a little bit too warm. Adapt to the environment, instead of trying to control it so totally. Besides, those are my tax dollars and yours-- and our precious natural resources--that are spent to run those air conditioners."

--Kathy Burton-- "As I look out from my third floor College Hall window during the day, I notice that the spotlights for the E. M. Gallaudet Statue are on ALL DAY LONG! It seems to me that Eddie is a big boy now and doesn't need his 'night lite' on in the daytime!"

DR. IRVING S. FUSFELD

Dr. Irving S. Fusfeld, vice president emeritus of Gallaudet College, died at his home in Ann Arbor, Michigan, on March 8, 1977, at the age of 84.

Dr. Fusfeld, originally from Brooklyn, N.Y., was a graduate of Columbia University (B.S. 1915; M.A. 1917) and of Gallaudet College (B.Ped. 1916; M.A. 1921). He joined the Gallaudet College faculty in 1916 and devoted the rest of his life to the education and concerns of deaf persons. Dr. Fusfeld taught psychology at Gallaudet and served as the first dean of the College from 1939 to 1953. In that year he became the College's vice president and, as such, was responsible for research on methods of instructing deaf persons.

In 1946, Gallaudet College awarded Dr. Fusfeld an honorary Doctor of Letters degree. Following his retirement from Gallaudet in 1960, he served for several years as staff psychologist at the Ca. School for the Deaf in Berkeley.

At the request of the Gallaudet Alumni Association Dr. Fusfeld received the title of vice president emeritus in 1973.

Dr. Fusfeld is survived by his widow, Dr. Cecile Fusfeld, M.D., and two sons. Expressions of condolence may be sent to the family at John Knox Village, 1200 Earhart Road, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48105.
